

CODE OF CONDUCT

The Institute of Aerospace Medicine is an Armed Forces Institute which by the ethos guided by its organizational structure functions beyond the limits of caste creed and gender. This institute thrives on the three pillars of training, medical examinations and research. The institute runs various courses which includes trainees from different Services in Indian armed forces, different nations and also civilians. The Institute of Aerospace Medicine has a strong ethical work culture that is based on inclusivity. It observes highest ethical standards in all its activities.

The academics are governed in accordance with the stipulations laid down by the Armed Forces Medical Services / Air Headquarters, National Medical Commission (NMC - Erstwhile MCI) and Rajiv Gandhi University of Health Sciences. The administration of the Institute is directly under the control of Headquarters Training Command IAF and Air Headquarters with an Officer of the rank of Air Commodore being the Commandant of the Institute. The code of conduct is as per Defence Service Regulations and Air Force Orders. The concerned document will be provided in person during DVV.